Infrastructure of the Future: Creating New Focal Points in the Far East

📅 6 September 2019 ⌚ 10:00–11:30

President, Chamber of Commerce and Industry of the Russian Federation

KEY CONCLUSIONS

There is good potential to develop the MICE industry in Primorye Territory

Our objective is now to consider all possible solutions for creating a concept for Vladivostok as a convention and exhibition capital in the Russian Pacific region. This needs to be done, and is already being done as we speak – Konstantin Bogdanenko, Acting Vice Governor of Primorye Territory.

It is our view that today, Vladivostok has a full foundation in place to acquire high-quality infrastructure. And of course, with its university and the work it does, the human resources potential of the MICE industry [Meetings, Incentives, Conferences, Events – ed.] will increase further – Alexander Stuglev, Chief Executive Officer, The Roscongress Foundation.

The potential and need to build the infrastructure for conventions and exhibitions here is enormous. We must look at the Asia-Pacific market, and Primorye Territory could become a focal point in terms of Russia's representation in this market – Anatoliy Bobrakov, Deputy Chief Executive Officer, Far East and Baikal Region Development Fund.

More work is being done in the exhibitions sector. Major exhibitions are being held, and our expocentre is a leader in the field, with over 50 years' experience in the Russian market – Vera Yermilova, General Director, Dalexpocenter LLC.

Conventions and exhibitions bring positive social and economic effects

In terms of the development of the Far East, this [infrastructure for conventions and exhibitions – ed.] is what can help properly drive socioeconomic development in the region, once it is in place – Anatoliy Bobrakov, Deputy Chief Executive Officer, Far East and Baikal Region Development Fund.

Our students understand that by being here, they not only have the chance to take advantage of our leading research and educational infrastructure, not only have the chance to learn from renowned FEFU and guest professors (including from overseas), they also have the chance to work as volunteer. This provides them with an insight into international events which take place here, as well as possible work opportunities – Victoria Panova, Vice-Rector for International Relations, FEFU, Russian W20 Representative.

Business tourism is growing in significance throughout the world

The global convention market is growing, and at a rapid rate. According to experts, it will be valued at up to USD 1.5 trillion, which is significant – Alexey Kalachev, Chief Executive Officer, Russia Convention Bureau.

The convention and exhibition sector is only starting to grow in Russia

In various developed countries, the convention sector accounts for 1.5% of GDP. The UK is a leader in this field. The country hosts numerous events of this kind, which is clearly due to its status as a financial centre. Conventions account for 2.9% of its GDP. In our country, this figure is 0.2%. Clearly, we are still at the learning stage, and are a long way away from leading nations and the global average – Sergey Katyrin, President, Chamber of Commerce and Industry of the Russian Federation.
